Welcome to the 90th Annual Members Exhibition of the Society of American Graphic Artists!

From its beginnings as a small group of printmakers exhibiting etchings in Brooklyn in 1915, and continuing over eleven decades, SAGA and its annual show have grown to feature fine art prints of all kinds, by artist members from across the country. We are proud to celebrate SAGA's 110th anniversary and our deep tradition of creating and promoting printmaking arts, as this year we welcome 28 new members to our ever-evolving collective now comprising over 250 artists. In sharing recent work with you we think that Ink and Impressions might challenge your expectations. Whether you are a student, a teacher, a curator or a newcomer to printmaking, we hope you will take time to join in the act of imagination that the arts and this museum extend freely. Take a close look at the prints that catch your eye; what will you find there?

Through our work, SAGA artists respect and value a vast and magnificent variety of sensibilities and aspirations. We are honored to hold our anniversary show in the beautiful Burt Chernow Galleries, and we are deeply grateful to Ann Chernow for connecting SAGA with the Housatonic Museum of Art.

SAGA's Council extends our sincere thanks to Jennifer Reynolds-Kaye and Charlotte Lefland for helping to put together this exhibition including programming that explores specific aspects of printmaking, and HMA's generous support for our opening reception, exhibition catalog, and much more.

To our donors and sponsors of awards, and the many SAGA volunteers and participating artists who made this exhibition a special one: thank you most of all.

Enjoy the ink and impressions!

Message from HMA

When I was interviewing to be the director of the Housatonic Museum of Art (HMA), I reached out to one of my trusted mentors for advice. She told me that museums are all about relationships. This truism has stuck with me ever since and I have tried to imbue every exhibition with collaboration and collegiality. The exhibition, Ink and Impressions: 110 Years of SAGA, is an excellent example of how working together makes an exhibition stronger. There were many people who played an important role in this collaboration, including the former SAGA President, DeAnn Prosia, who first approached me about this exhibition. SAGA member Ann Chernow not only has a significant body of work held by the HMA, but her husband, Burt, founded the museum in 1967. We are grateful to DeAnn and Ann for being the spark that ignited this collaboration.

For over two years, the HMA and SAGA leadership have been working hard to put together this exhibition. As one of the largest collections of art held by any community college in the United States, the Housatonic Museum of Art plays an important role in educating our students and community about art. We are fortunate to have so many SAGA artists represented among the 7,000 artworks in our collection, including Harold Altman, Isabel Bishop, Al Blaustein, Ann Chernow, Raphael Soyer, and John Taylor Arms. Several of these works from the HMA collection are included in the exhibition to add a historical dimension and expand the representation of SAGA artists beyond the present membership. We are excited to introduce our campus community to SAGA and their artists, many of whom will be new to our students, faculty, and staff. It has been an absolute pleasure working with the SAGA Board as well as Luanda Lozano, who designed the catalog.

This exhibition has also deepened existing relationships with another local arts organization, the Center for Contemporary Printmaking (CCP) in Norwalk, CT. Not only are they hosting a concurrent exhibition that features some SAGA artists that overlap with Ink and Impressions, but they are also helping us organize a campus-wide STEAM event in November 2025. This day-long event expands on the process of printmaking to consider the intersections of art and technology through talks and hands-on demonstrations. We are thrilled to collaborate with CCP and grateful for their willingness to share their expertise with our students at CT State Housatonic.

The relationship with CCP extends to the jury as well, as we are grateful to have Kimberly Henrikson, the Executive Director of CCP, on the panel. Kimberly has been incredibly kind and generous both personally and professionally during my tenure, and I'm thrilled that she agreed to serve as a juror. I'm also delighted to welcome a newer friend and colleague, Irene Michnicki, who teaches printmaking at CT State Housatonic. It is so important to have a faculty member from our community college involved in the jurying, and her eye towards both teaching and art practice has been very beneficial during this process.

All exhibitions are created with the visitor in mind, and so you, dear reader, are the last relationship that we are hoping to nourish. If you've been a long-time supporter of the Housatonic Museum of Art, we thank you. If this is your first time getting to know us, then welcome to the museum and make yourself at home. Please enjoy the catalog as a reflection of what's on view and please stay in touch.

Jennifer Reynolds-Kaye, PhD
Director, Housatonic Museum of Art (HMA)

110 YEARS OF THE SOCIETY OF AMERICAN GRAPHIC ARTISTS

Jurors

The three jurors of the exhibition, "Ink and Impressions: 110 Years of the Society of American Graphic Artists," were incredibly honored to be selected for this role. We are grateful to the Society of American Graphic Artists (SAGA) for inviting us as the jurors for the exhibition's awards.

As a group of three arts professionals, it was a rewarding and yet challenging experience to determine 25 awards from over 160 prints. At several points in the process, we reflected on the impressively high caliber of artworks in the exhibition and how difficult our task was to narrow them down to a shortlist. There are many deserving artists represented in this exhibition, as evidenced by their technical expertise, creative prowess, and material mastery.

We were particularly drawn to the precision of many of the artworks, as well as how printmakers are pushing the boundaries of what's possible. The jurors received digital copies of all 160 artworks with pertinent details regarding size and medium. After the jurors evaluated the individual submissions, the Director of the Housatonic Museum of Art compiled their reflections into a primary document and began processing the results. The jurors met to review and agree upon the proposed awards, and determined the remaining ones. The jury came to a consensus after thoughtful deliberation, and the group felt confident in the final decisions.

Most of all, the jurors would like to thank all of the exhibiting artists for sharing their inspiring artwork with us. Whether you're a long-time member of SAGA or a brand new member to the organization, you have impressed us and we are excited for what's to come.
